

Oncologist

RCH is looking for a Medical Oncologist to provide outpatient oncology services and inpatient consultant coverage at Royal Columbian Hospital in Fraser Health. The successful candidate will work closely with current Oncologist and Hematologists. The position will involve providing coverage for the inpatient services, maintaining an outpatient practice, and taking part in research and educational activities. This position will not involve any call apart from coverage of existing Oncology patients. Further clinical details such as tumour site coverage can be discussed with interested applicants.

This position offers the opportunity to practice in all areas of Oncology. The candidate will also be expected to be involved in teaching in Oncology. There will be an expectation to provide clinical leadership in at least one of the program areas. There are also opportunities to participate in clinical trials.

The position is scheduled to start Aug 1, 2018, full time, and the compensation is Fee for Service.

Qualifications

The candidate must have passed the Royal College Examination in Internal Medicine & Oncology and must demonstrate evidence of sufficient clinical experience in all areas of Oncology. Experience and demonstrated skills in leadership, medical administration and teaching will be considered an asset. Training or interest in hematologic malignancy is considered an asset.
